Johannes Neuner: Communication to us:

Dear FIGU team, dear other recipients,
I have been reading the writings of Billy and the FIGU for several years now, and during this time I have always been able to decipher all questions and confusions that have arisen through further research or detailed thinking, also because I did not want to take up your scarce resources, I refrained from contacting you and accordingly dealt with the texts in more detail myself. This time, unfortunately, it is not so, which is why I ask for your support in this matter. Gladly also in the form of a bulletin question.

In FIGU Bulletin No. 113 of August 30, 2021, there is the article 'On Time Travel, the End of Time and Thinking Frontier Experiences' by Christian Fehner, which triggered the confusion. The following passages were primarily the trigger:

"And if from today's present, lasting on average 2.7 seconds, a leap is made into the future, e.g. into the year 3999, then this logically means that now, here in our present of the year 2021, the events of the year 3999 are already taking place. Only through this is it possible, on the one hand, to undertake time travel into the future by means of technical aids, or to gain information of the future through the use of consciousness."

Quote from Bulletin FIGU No. 40, August 2002, where Billy writes the following on page 12:

"It still has to be explained with regard to the materially possible time travel that also all the processes and happenings of that time span of the future cannot be changed in any way or influenced in any other way, which have already happened up to that point of time, at which the direct time travel goal is located in the future. For the time of this goal the past has already happened again, which means that at the time of reaching the future time travel goal the causes of the past resp. time that has passed until then have already become reality as an effect. Concerning future related changes resp. the possible influencing of future departures

In the course of time, it is possible to influence the future, but only from the time when the future time travel destination becomes the present. In this form it is the same process as with the normal present, during or in which as well as in the continuous time into the future this can be influenced, shaped and therefore changes of the processes and happenings can be created, namely by creating certain original things, out of which again certain effects develop and result."

"So it is already certain - i.e. it has already happened in the future - that in the course of the next 1 to 2 thousand years a 'substantial' part of humanity will depart prematurely from life, whether due to monstrous natural disasters, by new epidemics, or possibly due to violent, targeted decimation measures."

Christian Frehner also explains that despite all these circumstances, human beings have free will.

So my concern is about checking statements 1., 3.1, 3.2 as well as answering question 2 which is most important to me in this regard:

1. There is free will of man, because man himself determines about every decision of his, however it is already certain which decision he will make. (Am. Billy: This 'stands firm' only applies when the decision has actually been considered and decided).
2. If the most influential people on earth would have thought about creating global attention for the extreme overpopulation by many means in order to stop the climate change and the rise of the sea level, but now they get to know by a foresight that the sea level will surely rise by about one meter, then they know in advance (note Billy: only if everything is really considered and 'seen' in advance) that the project is doomed to fail. However, it was quasi already certain (note Billy: something is only certain in this way if it has been considered and determined beforehand) that they will receive the information and consequently will not implement the project, since everything future and past is already determined and they will therefore not prevent the sea level from rising. But how, starting from a time stream moving forward into the future, can the future have a retroactive effect on itself? (Note Billy: This happens because a certain action/thinking etc., so to speak, inevitably causes something certain in the future).
3. Statements 3.1 as well as 3.2 are pure comprehension questions regarding Billy's text and can be omitted if there is a lack of time as well as to speed up an answer if necessary.
4. Billy explains in the second quotation, "that an influence on the further future can be made, but only from the time when the future time travel destination becomes the present (note Billy: What has already happened cannot be changed, because also in the future what has already happened is already past. So, if something wants to be changed, it has to be thought/acted in the respective present and in the current time into the future in such a way that it does not happen). In this form, it is the same process as in the normal present, during or in the (note Billy: correction of the question: present or the) ongoing time into the future, this can be influenced, shaped, and thus changes in the processes and events can be created, and this by creating certain causes, from which certain effects develop and result again."

3.1 So, if the future time travel goal is the year 2100, then only in the present of the year 2100 the processes and events can be changed, so everything is only decided until this time travel goal, consequently, if there is no time travel goal that lies even further in the future, things can still be changed. (Note Billy: If in the year 2100 therefore something has already happened resp. has happened, then this resulted from the fact that iota for iota that has happened, which has put together itself mentally/acting from an idea/action consequently to the final result resp. to the happening).

3.2 (Analogous to 3.1) So if the future time travel destination is shortly before the end of our present universe, then only again in the present of time, shortly before the end of our present universe, the processes and events can be changed, so accordingly all is already decided. (Note Billy: Something cannot be changed for a coming event only if before and up to that time everything is thought/acted/controlled/done in such a way whereby the event comes about or not. This says that what is done in the past and present and in the course of time determines what will come about as a result in the future).

Thank you for your attention. Salome, Johannes N.

Answer: To answer the questions is actually a thing that should be left out, because it is not directly a matter of spiritual teaching. Such information, if it is given in a report, is effectively only incidental to explain things that inevitably arise with this and that, but which are not relevant that they have to be learned and worked on, because they only serve to complete the whole. This especially not in connection with the spiritual teaching that only serves the purpose that the human being should develop to a true human being and learn to behave and act as such in every situation of life as it is due to him as a thinking and reasonable being.

It is necessary to deal with the spiritual teachings in such a way that one learns to become a true human being and to lead a blameless life in every respect. This means that the archaic negative impulses that are dormant in the deep underground of the character and that become active again at any time and in any situation have to be controlled, while every mention of information that is not directly related to the teachings of the spirit is not so relevant and has no direct connection to them. Consequently, they do not need to be pursued or learned. But if nevertheless a learning man wants to do this, he can very well do so, but it remains in any case his own interest, for which he has to make an effort himself. The knowledge that is important and is to be learned is described in such detail that specific questions arise out of the teaching material that are related to spiritual teaching and of course are alright, but not then if they aim at things and aspects that do not correspond to the teaching and therefore to other things and not to spiritual teaching. To deal with other interests, questions or areas is of course not forbidden, but these matters are not to be mixed up with the spiritual teaching, for which I am responsible to bring and to explain, but not for other areas of interest, as for example time travel, politics and other topics and problems etc., which are mentioned in the spiritual teaching as well as in the contact reports only in passing or for reasons of actuality. But these are not connected to the learning of the spirit teachings. And indeed, if the spiritual teaching is chosen as study, then it is to be learned, consequently, side interests are not to be mixed up with it, because this deviation from the subject of learning does not correspond to the meaning of the actual learning of what is to be recognized as important and what is really to be learned.

Your message to us:

Good evening

Already as a little girl I have often seen so-called UFO appearances and I am fascinated by the subject, especially because I am also convinced that it would be very arrogant to believe that we are the only species in this universe.

It would be nice to have contact with people who have experienced similar things. I am also intrigued that Mr. Meier sees my own concern exactly the same as I see mine regarding overpopulation. I am soon to be 29 years old, and when I look out into the world, I dread to procreate, which is something I said when I was 20, namely that I don't want to have children because we are already putting an unnecessary strain on the world anyway and there are too many people.

Long story short: I would be very happy if I could get an answer to this contact form in any way, as I feel I can develop personally through people like you seem to be, or in any case have interesting conversations.

Nathalie

Further question:

To Billy,

To the sighting report of Mr. Gümüs published by you the following is possibly worth mentioning, since this happened to me and also to many other humans such.

Most of the time it is the ISS (International Space Station) which races around the earth at an altitude of about 400 km with a speed of about 28,000 kmh or 7.6 kilometres per second. Unfortunately, the location of Mr. Gümüs is not mentioned in the report, which is why I have chosen the location Zurich at www.astroviewer.net.

In the appendix you can see the evaluation and the trajectory. Salome

Warning against the idiotic compulsory vaccination

Kai Amos, Germany

On 2/4/2022, the far-left news portal GMX announced that there was now a draft law for the idiotic compulsory vaccination. This, although the resistance against the vaccination compulsory is growing more and more, and the vaccination compulsory brings no benefit at all, but only harm. The German Civil Servants' Association announced a few weeks ago that it would not be possible to implement it anyway, and the panel doctors also refuse to implement compulsory vaccination. Nevertheless, the green-brown federal government narrow-mindedly holds on to the Compulsory vaccination. They're afraid of their own incompetence. They want to cover up their inability to deal with the Corona disease pandemic. They're afraid of losing their lucrative jobs. The withdrawal of the idiotic 2G-/3G-Nazi rules and the abandonment of the vaccination compulsory would strengthen the trust of the people in the politicians instead of weakening it. But the politicians in their stupidity (not thinking), stupidity (not knowing) and in their narrow-mindedness do not get that. The Minister of Health Lauterbach, who as a studied physician has no idea of his profession, nevertheless knows that the vaccinations are of no use, but in good old Goebbels manner (Do you want the total vaccination war?) he agitates against the unvaccinated, makes the recovered to the unvaccinated and colports the alleged benefit of the Corona vaccinations.

A few days ago, the same left-wing extremist news portal GMX announced that Corona protesters had chanted 'Verrecke Palmer' in front of Palmer's house. Palmer, who is known for his inhumanity, rants about violence against the unvaccinated, and a local Green politician also called for violence against Corona demonstrators, which was promptly implemented by the Munich police. And then it is said that police officers are right-wing extremists.

Forced vaccination is violence. Agitation and calls for violence are (verbal) violence. That is why there are no arguments for a 'compulsory vaccination'. If you know the truth and reality, you don't need arguments. And if politicians stick to their idiotic plan to introduce the idiotic compulsory vaccination in Germany, there will be violence against politicians, vaccination centers, etc. Because:

They sow the wind and reap the whirlwind.
He who takes up the sword perishes by the sword.
He who sows hatred shall reap the whirlwind.

Therefore, we must continue to fight against the idiotic compulsory vaccination in Germany (and worldwide) with all peaceful, democratic, non-violent and legal means. Otherwise it will not remain with 'Verrecke Palmer' shouts. We must not participate in the violence against the unvaccinated or vaccination nazis and must also defend ourselves against it with all peaceful and democratic means.

Jan. 24, 2022 was the last round of federal-state Corona consultations. Afterwards, the extreme left news portal GMX announced that no tightening had been decided. This shows that the resistance is successful, and therefore we must not slacken now with our peaceful and democratic resistance. GMX, by the way, has been strangely holding back on pro-vaccine coercion articles for a few weeks now. Loosely based on the communist journo motto, "What isn't reported didn't happen." In reality, that doesn't work.

On that note, stay well. Nothing lasts forever, not even the Corona plague pandemic and vaccination Naziism.

Conspiracy theories - how to recognize them

Kai Amos, Friday, Germany

When I talk in this article about stupid followers, etc., then I only criticize the followers and therefore the stupidity resp. the non-thinking of the persons concerned. I do not criticize the people as such, because I have respect and esteem for the people as such, even if they behave wrongly.

The mass of conspiracy theorists can be divided into three groups:

- 1. The deceivers who deliberately spread false doctrines in order to rip people off,
- 2. the conscious mentally ill who suffer from paranoid schizophrenia and who cannot or do not want to recognize the truth,
- 3. the stupid followers who do not think about it, and therefore accept the content of the conspiracy theories as true or believe in it.

The last group is the biggest and can be found in all heresies (Creator God religions of all kinds, vegetarianism-veganism, gender delusion, refugeism, communism, etc.). They are the most dangerous and worst group, because they make the false doctrines hopeful in the first place. If they were not stupid and if they would think and recognize the delusion behind these heresies, they would get rid of them and the heresies would not be able to gain majority.

The aim of this article is not to deal with the content of conspiracy theories, because they are delusional and therefore not real. Discussing something unreal is stupid and illogical and also a waste of time. But it is necessary to explain what they consist of and are built upon.

Symptom 1: 'The'

Conspiracy theorists like to talk about 'them'. But who these 'they' are supposed to be, they cannot name. This is because 'they' do not exist. Thereby it is implied that 'they' are behind all possible events and are responsible for everything. We also find this in the creator-god religions, which make an imaginary and therefore non-existent god responsible for everything and everything is supposed to correspond to his will. This is done in order to justify one's own wrongdoing and to present oneself as innocent (witch burnings, mass murders of people of other faiths, etc.). This goes so far as to suggest that this imaginary god is even responsible if one bends his little finger. This illogical argument (he who knows the truth/reality needs no arguments) denies the self-responsibility and autonomy of people, who are 100% responsible for their own actions and thinking. This also applies to the non-thinking of the fellow travelers who also believably perceive the conspiracy theories and shift the responsibility to 'them', 'who' are behind everything.

The deplorable conditions of all kinds on our planet earth, which can be traced back to the machinations of men alone, result from the blatant overpopulation, which has arisen since the year 1700 and is now raging all over the world, but has now reached a point where everything breaks down and only chaos rules. But this is not recognized by the conspiracy phantasts, and so the whole chaos is blamed on 'them', 'who' are supposed to have organized everything according to a plan.

As in symptom 6, 'they' are then the bad guys, while you portray yourself as the 'good guys', and an "us, the good guys versus 'them', the bad guys" prevails.

Symptom 2: Schizophrenic-split thinking

Following on from symptom 2, it is interesting to note that the schizophrenic split minded thinking of the stupid conspiracy theorists, who believably don't think and make up everything about their stupid conspiracy theories, accept them as true and real, but in other areas are quite reasonable and understanding, and there recognise and think about the truth and reality.

Symptom 3: Paranoid schizophrenia

According to current scientific knowledge, there are 3 different forms of schizophrenia: paranoid-hallucinatory, catatonic schizophrenia simplex and hebephrenia. For this article, however, only the paranoid-hallucinatory schizophrenia is of importance.

The paranoid-hallucinatory schizophrenia - like all others - is characterized among other things by the fact that these sufferers incorporate and reinterpret everything they perceive into their paranoid-hallucinatory worldview (i.e. into their delusions). Reality and truth are thereby completely faded out and denied and even downright raped. Everything they see, hear, read, etc., is integrated into these delusions in such a way that everything seems logical and understandable to them, which is why they do not notice, or do not want to notice, that they are on the wrong track. Once this state is reached, only a psychotherapy, a medicinal therapy and the consequent ignoring as well as distancing oneself from these mad conspiracy theories and/or delusions will help.

Symptom 4: Non-provability of conspiracy theories

Since all the conspiracy theories are not real, no evidence can be presented for them. At best you hear 'it says so on the internet' (and the power comes out of the socket). But internet is not a source, and that is why it is called conspiracy theories and not reality, truth, fact.

Symptom 5: Ignorance

It is striking that the conspiracy phantasts have no knowledge about the subject of their insane and confused conspiracy theory. If they talk about it, they only give ideologies, which are recognizable by the fact that they have no factual knowledge about the topic in question.

Symptom 6: One-sided thinking

From symptom 2 and 5 results symptom 6, where it is striking that conspiracy theorists, due to their ignorance and their schizophrenic-split and not in logic, reason and understanding led non-thinking, invent downright extremist and just thoughtless, not real-thinking delusions and parrot only ideologies, which they themselves do not understand, because they really do not understand.

are able to think logically, rationally and sensibly, but only illogically, incomprehensibly and unreasonably concoct erroneous ideas.

As already with symptom 1, the stupid conspiracy theorists do not recognize that a situation consists of many aspects, and not only of the ideologically parroted one-sided erroneous and false assertions, from which also the one-sided idea creation by non-thinking and thus stupidity results.

Since the evil of conspiracy theories, among other things (there are other reasons that shall not be part of this article), have become viable with the outbreak of the Corona Plague Pandemic Chaos Catastrophe, I hope that this article will help people start thinking (again), and thus the evil of conspiracy theories will be curbed and hopefully eradicated.

Country: Germany

Your message to us:

Dear members of the FIGU,

The last few days I've been thinking about pedophilia, abuse, ritual violence, etc., and I remembered some statements by Billy that seem to contradict this. First point: Ptaah and Billy had once commented on Barack Obama, saying that he was actually not such a bad person, that he had pursued good goals, but that the opposing side was too powerful and he could only ever offer minimal resistance. Now I found several info that Obama is obviously - just like many other elites are - part of a pedo-criminal elite since his childhood. There's a picture of him 'dressed' like a hustler (rather salacious - may be a montage, of course, but makes sense in relation to the other info), and then info that he's been involved with this infamous C*met Ping P*ng P*zzeria several times during his time in office. He was photographed there and placed orders for astronomical amounts (or in his name). Further, in an interview he had used the typical code words for child abuse and raved about an intimate friend (Obama is said to be homosexual). So that kind of makes sense to me in context. So I find that he was then described in said conversation by Billy and Ptaah as downright belittling, as someone who wanted something good, but if you take seriously the background I described, you realize that Obama could never have really accomplished anything good with his background. So an honorable mention as an actually positive figure seems misleading. That's the first point. Another point is that Billy had mentioned in another conversation that the hatred or suspicion against secret lodges (Freemasons, etc.) was also partly unfounded and exaggerated. Here again I see a peculiar lack of concern. According to everything I have read in recent days, including interviews with those affected, it is precisely these secret lodges in which the most monstrous things (torture, violence, rituals) go on for ordinary mortals, precisely under the cloak of secrecy. This point came to my mind when I was dealing with these things. Again, it is a remark whose background motivation is not really clear to me. One last point, about astrology: Billy mentioned in one of the more recent conversations that astrology is basically nonsense. I have been dealing with these things for many years and find that the astrological statements can sometimes be really amazingly true, about the basic nature of a human being etc. I have always assumed that astrology is not really nonsense. I have always assumed that the astrological statements are in principle a characterization of the human being according to the respective season, with the respective tasks and characteristics that concern this season. And that would make sense somewhere: Taurus: mid/late spring fertility, growth, yearly planning, planful action etc., Capricorn: mid winter frugality, thriftiness, pragmatism etc. Incidentally, some of Semjase's statements would then have to be explained again, which also called astrology a serious subject, provided it is practiced carefully. And last but not least, why does FIGU itself refer to astrology Aquarian Time, Aquarian Time Publishing etc So those were my points.

Greetings, M. Haase

Answer: It is unfortunately very unfortunate with the people of the earth, because far too little is thought and considered for oneself, but believed and relied on what is told, falsified, written, faxed and faked. Especially when it comes to making a 'pig' out of other people because, for example, someone hates them, someone doesn't like them, they are prominent or state leaders, etc. It is simply believed by people when they say something negative about others, tell-len, write or otherwise smile and possibly even prove and 'testify' with falsified documents, photos and films etc.. This is generally the case and probably also applies to the case you describe concerning Barack Obama. Please consider, dear Mr. Haase, there is nothing easier than to 'lie into the distance', as it has been said since time immemorial, as well as that it cannot 'go peacefully if the evil neighbour does not like it', as well as that 'lies only have short legs' and above all that 'every lie is once exposed by the truth'. And this happens faster than any liar - female or male - is able to think.

Now, I do not know Barack Obama, either hearsay or in person, so I do not presume to judge or condemn him, his actions, his dispositions, etc. I can only do so in relation to what he has done, both good and bad. For my part, I can only do so with respect to what he has done good and wrong, but nothing more. So it is not for me in any way to appreciate or praise him or to blame him with regard to things that go beyond my real knowledge concerning his right or wrong actions. So I can only be for or against for something that I know exactly, not for something that I do not really know - otherwise I would be a liar, but what I do not want to be, because otherwise I could not stand before myself with my attitude of justice. So it is not for me - nor for Ptaah and others - to judge more, and not even with Obama, than what is known to me from what I know for sure he did in good or evil. But how he is, thinks and acts in other respects and ways etc., that I do not know, consequently I am not able to judge. This also does not apply to the claim that he is homosexual, but nevertheless is married and has fathered children. Neither you nor I are able to say what the truth really is, because it is an assertion that we can neither prove nor know the truth about, therefore we do not have to think about it - especially not because it is none of our business. Furthermore, if it would be or is the case that homosexuality is his sexual direction, then this would be or is his business alone, but not ours, so neither you nor I are predisposed to judge this in any way as good or bad or to even think about it, if it is true or not. This is not because on the one hand it does not concern us at all, but on the other hand also because homosexuality is something as normal as lesbianism and heterosexuality, and therefore neither something reprehensible nor abominable, as well as nothing a person has to be ashamed of or feel abnormal about - or should not be considered abnormal or judged in such a way. This also applies to people who are androgynous or bisexual, that is, who belong to hermaphroditism and hermaphroditism and are therefore people who have a double sexuality.

Now, as far as astrology is concerned, it is indeed, in regard to the making of horoscopes of any kind of nonsense. What Semjase once said had a completely different meaning than is taken from her statement, as is unfortunately often the case that something is interpreted differently than it is really meant to be understood. But to discuss this is of no use, because it is probably not understood that the meaning of Semjase's statement referred to the correctness that exists in connection with the assessment of the character traits of man, which arose in connection with astrology about 4000 years ago, when this knowledge arose and settled into astrology. And that this was really the case, and that everything went quite differently and came about with regard to the emergence of astrology and then horoscopy, I know that very well for certain reasons, but to talk about it is probably of no value, because nobody can compete with the know-it-alls.

What was said and explained elsewhere by Semjase referred only to the faith of the believers in Horoskop who just believe in the nonsense, consequently she did nothing else than to confirm what is the faith of the people in this respect. Unfortunately, this does not clearly emerge from her statement and was perhaps a mistake on her part, which is why a misunderstanding can be the inevitable result, but to talk about it is probably useless.

Astrology was already established in early times, the foundations of which were laid by the ancient Egyptians about 4000 BC, and later by the Sumerians about 3000 BC and the Babylonians about 2000 BC. Already they divided the year and the months into temporal sections and made star maps, observed the sky and the planets as well as their constellation and noticed that children showed special characteristics if they were born at certain times or months. They noticed that the mind of the children also developed in certain ways, which then had an effect on their whole life. In the course of time also kings were instructed in this matter, which caused them to pass this knowledge on to their advisers and diviners, who misused the knowledge and used it for predictions, which they spread. That's how first 13 different divisions of the times came into being when the peculiarities as well as the determined state of mind of the children appeared, consequently, they were assigned to certain times resp. 13 periods of time that resulted in 1 year according to today's understanding. This continued until these time periods were shortened to 12 and became what today are the 12 months and/or what is 1 year that has 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes and 46 seconds. A year is the time in which the earth once the sun, whereby the problem arises that in the calendar a year can have however only whole days, why a 'leap year' was furnished, so the month February instead of 28 then 29 days has.

The whole thing changed due to the rule of that time that advisors, diviners and counsellors were consulted - which is still common today, only that they are not called diviners anymore - in such a way that kings and generals were advised by astrologers who were at the same time advisors, diviners and counsellors before important decisions were made. So it happened that in the course of time every major culture was engaged in astrology, which early on was also found all over the world, so also among the natives of North, Central and South America, i.e. from today's Alaska to Brasilia. Also in the Far East and in Africa and Europe the 'art' of astrology and so the prediction by horoscopy, which was as wrong as all predictions of Delphi in Greece and elsewhere etc., penetrated.

Unfortunately, astrology still has its importance in the human society, because the man of the earth believes in astrology as well as in religions, which is basically wrong, but he does not allow himself to be taught about it. So there are many believers in astrology who like to claim that today's astrology is a 'supplementary religion', but not something that is based on an old knowledge of the Egyptians etc., who on the one hand observed the sky and the planets and on the other hand noticed something in children who were born at certain times resp. days and months. But if we look at astrology as a religion, then it is not surprising that the intelligent of the earthling is not protected from the old religious delusion, just as it is not protected from the delusion of astrology.

Modern astrology today turns more and more to pseudo-psychological statements than to messing with the astronomers, who know that horoscopy corresponds to sheer nonsense. The physicists themselves simply turn away from this nonsense, and complex psychology - which unfortunately is also not what it should be - can relatively easily bend people to fit what the psychologists want to make of them. So they can almost 'model' people to their liking as it seems necessary to them, the psychologists - or, if they can't be 'helped', they can simply send them into the desert, i.e. let them wander around senselessly and collect the fee for a senseless 'treatment'. This is the attitude and behavior of many of today's 'experts', because it is so much easier to 'earn' money this way than through hard work. The world resp. the human being wants to be deceived, especially by things that are determined by a belief, like e.g. the 'substitute religion' astrology, but besides the religious belief in an imaginary 'dear God' and 'God's son'. Who actually has so much time to deal with all the bullshit of a belief, can watch and listen to this daily belief nonsense in an imaginary 'dear God' directly on TV, when Joyce Mayer 'yodels' it into the recording cameras.

Objections against all the existing nonsense and imbecility are usually so morbid on the part of the astrological believers that - just like with the God delusion believers - every word of logic, of understanding and of reason bounces off them and they continue to hold on to their crazy belief - dependent and without will. This is because they are stupid and therefore do not think themselves, at least not logically, but incompletely, confusedly, erroneously and above all not self-confidently and self-responsibly.

The believers of astrology cannot apply quantitative valuable standards of reason to themselves and start from a real thinking, consequently every criticism is as senseless as it is with God delusion believers. The criticized live with false assumptions and consider their belief to be the building of life, and they measure it by the standards of the false and imagined logic of their style of cognition, their supposedly infallible understanding and their imagined reason of their erroneous belief, while they consider the real, the actual and the truthful to be something badly constructed. They thereby overlook the difference between the imagination of their belief and the reality and its truth, which especially the true knowledge and wisdom hold in itself.

The stars neither influence the people of the earth nor the earth itself, but they are in cosmic connection with it through the solar system, because the whole is a part of the universe, in which all visible and invisible matter is located, moves and works in a valuable way. The stars - which are actually suns, as well as galaxies - and their position have moreover changed and shifted since the invention of astrology by the Egyptians about 4000 years ago due to the unstoppable rapid expansion and movement of the whole cosmos in such a way that nothing, nothing at all, is the same in constellations as it was 4000 years ago. And to know this, it is not necessary to learn astronomy, because what is absolutely logical neither has to be studied and learned as knowledge, but has to become true and irrefutable knowledge in itself by observation, real perception and conscious thinking as well as by understanding and reason. Therefore, positions of the celestial bodies that have changed in 4000 years can not be taken as valuable astrological calculation points anymore, which is already enough proof for a man who thinks logically and rationally himself, not only to reject the alleged power of the predictions and also the horoscopy in its own right.

But to recognize and reject all this as nonsense of faith and nonsense of belief. This, while the judgement of man on his character traits has a completely different perspective, which namely does not refer to astrology, but to the psychological ability of observation and the same kind of judgement of man. For a long time there have been carefully made studies that show for logical and rational people that there is no reliable connection between the stars, the galaxies and the earthling, therefore his destiny does not depend on the stars.

In this exclusive interview, Lt. Colonel (USAF Ret.) Wendelle Stevens tells everything he knows surrounding several strange deaths of prominent UFO researchers. The impossible "double suicide" of the great physicist and UFOologist, James McDonald. Lt. Colonel Wendelle Stevens, one of the greatest UFO researchers of all time, passed at 87 on September 10, 2010 in Tucson, Arizona. The following interview was given by Col. Stevens to Maurizio Baiata in Montesilvano (Italy) in November 1997. The full transcript has been reviewed and approved by Col. Stevens, in view of publication by the bimonthly magazine Open Minds. The article never found room in those pages and I am honored to presented it here for the very first time.

I had the fortune to meet Col. Stevens several times in Tucson and in Tempe (AZ) in 2009 and 2010, when I took the pictures depicted in this article.

Maurizio Baiata: Colonel Stevens, let's focus on the period when professor Hynek first entered the UFO scene. Wendelle Stevens: It happened with Project Grudge, a project that did not last too long. Immediately after its creation Hynek was appointed as astronomy consultant for the project and was given a Confidential clearance. Therefore he could not have access to any Secret reports. Hynek was chosen by his astronomy professor at Harvard, Donald Menzel, who was a member of the MJ-12 group. Menzel recommended Hynek because he was a brilliant man who would follow the rules and was the right one to administer the information from upstairs to downstairs providing feasible explanations to the public. This was Hynek's task. Although Hynek always tried to get his hands on the secret reports, he was unable since he lacked the clearance.

Capt. Wendelle Stevens at ATIC Flight Test, 1947 (W. Stevens Archive).

Then Project Grudge was closed and Project Blue Book replaced it. Although Blue Book still had a Confidential clearance, Hynek was granted permission to go beyond Secret reports, despite the fact these reports were of lower significance compared to Top Secret, Majic and Eyes Only classified reports.

MB: There were no reports related to the UFO crashes, then?

WS: No. All the UFO crash cases were classified above Secret. At a certain point Hynek objected that they could not give any feasible explanation to the public without being aware of the full Secret reports. That was when he left the office and became a consultant for the Air Force. Still, Hynek could not have access to the most important reports, it was a frustrating situation. Hynek wanted to get out of this control system, wanted freedom to investigate and to disclose. It was then that he suffered a brain tumor and died.

MB: Colonel, are you implying that you suspect something about it?

WS: For sure, and for many other suspicious deaths. Death by the same cause. Brain tumor. Which can be induced.

MB: New Mexico congressman Steven Schiff is suffering from a brain tumor. (Schiff died on March 25, 1998)

WS: Yes, it's a dangerous game. I asked Colonel Corso if he feels his life is in danger. In his book The Day After Roswell, Corso mentions his friendship with Robert I. Sarbacher [physicist and consultant with the U.S. Department of Defense Research and Development Board] Corso is a unique witness, we have nobody else like him. Others are too scared to talk publicly, they can only speak in paraphrases. For instance, Sarbacher said "Oh, these things are going back 25 years ago, today they have no importance at all." Whitley Strieber called me asking for Sarbacher's phone number in Melbourne, Florida. You know what happened? He called on a Monday and they scheduled an interview for the next Friday, on the subject of UFO crashes and retrievals. On Thursday night Strieber was ready to leave. He phoned again to confirm the appointment and the wife's scientist told him that her husband had died the previous night of a heart attack. Here's how things go. You know how they do this? They use a powdery substance that can be placed on the steering wheel of your car, or on the door knob or the button flush, and by contact it enters the bloodstream. The substance can be triggered remotely using a very simple device, and virtually freezes the blood, causing the stroke. See, Sarbacher, had no heart problem and died just the day before the interview with Strieber.

MB: Can you refer to other suspicious cases known to you?

WS. Now, there's another classic case of this type. Donald Keyhoe was head of NICAP. Frank Edwards was a broadcasting journalist in Washington that had already written in his book, that he was determined to pull off a sensational story about UFOs, along with Major Donald Keyhoe, bring it to the attention of Congress and propose the establishment of a committee to analyze the situation. So they turned to Indiana Congressman J. Edward Roush, who was interested in the phenomenon and who chaired some sessions of the committee [The congressional hearing initiated under the auspices of the House Science and Astronautics Committee on July 29, 1968]. The three agreed to hold a press meeting. The plan was that Keyhoe would produce the evidence and the next morning Edwards would have sent a press release, while the congressman would call the press in its meeting room and suddenly he raised the volume of the radio so all the journalists could not miss the news. Then he would have said that it was a problem that the parliament should deal with. It was all planned, Keyhoe gave all the information to Edward's. But while Frank was preparing the press release he was struck down by a heart attack. Since Edward's could no longer make the announcement, Roush and Keyhoe knowing the contents of the release tried to repeat it three days later.

The entire Col. Stevens archives are property of Open Minds Production. (ph: Maurizio Baiata)

They decided to entrust it to another journalist. Because of those unmistakable signs, Keyhoe resolved to retire. Too dangerous, and anyway, now he was alone, he had lost his friends. Other researchers began to fear the worst and to come forward publicly. They gave up. I had two of my colleagues with whom I worked on UFO crashes. We had a piece of metal retrieved from a UFO incident in the Baja peninsula and another fragment from New Mexico. A retired Army lieutenant colonel had managed to get hold of a fragment. He called me from San Diego saying he was ready to drive over with his car and meet me that same night in Tucson. Three hours later his wife called me and she told me that I would never see her husband. He was found dead in his car, just outside San Diego, with a gunshot to the head exploded by a left-handed person. He was right-handed and he never had a gun in his life. His briefcase was missing, and the car was clean.

MB: And who represents the most important case, ever?

WS: Of course, I have to talk about James McDonald, who I knew very well. He was among the recipients of five detailed reports that we prepared, with solid evidence, which were not included in Project Blue Book. He believed that all the reports and evidence will go over at the Blue Book, we proved him otherwise. He then realized that the cases which he had thoroughly re-investigated were real. Therefore he asked the Blue Book why they did not analyze them. They answered that they knew nothing. So he turned to various Generals, one of which confirmed to be aware of those reports and that they came from the Foreign Technology Division [the same of Corso].

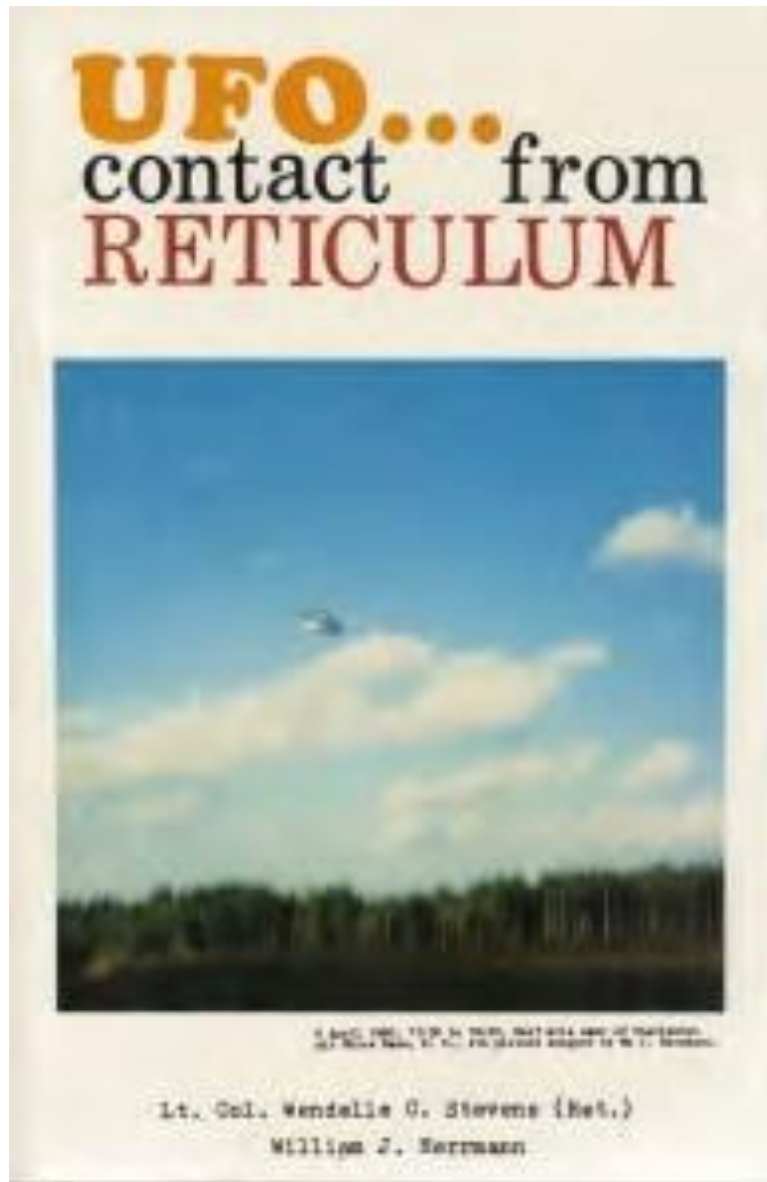

McDonald replied that he had just addressed the question to the FTD and they knew nothing. The general asked him "Who said that?" and McDonald replied "the Blue Book," and the general, "But they know nothing, they are only a public relations office, you must speak with a [certain] Colonel." McDonald tried that way but it was useless, so he went to the Pentagon, holding a couple of names mentioned by the general.

At that time the President, I believe was Johnson, used to invite for breakfast in his office, next to the Oval Room, a couple of congressmen and senators, along with his closest staff collaborators. According to the schedule, first the counselors made an introductory statement, followed by the others and they all summarized the day's briefing. At that point the guests of the representatives and the senators could intervene, saying what they thought was more appropriate. McDonald was the guest of an Arizona Congressman who introduced him. McDonald stood up and said to have in hand those five very substantial UFO reports that we provided to him, and that did not appear in the Blue Book, or elsewhere. Nobody replied. With a strange expression on their faces, all remained silent and, one after the other, left the office. The Presidential Breakfast was over. McDonald did not get anything.

MB: How did McDonald react to that situation?

WS: Within two weeks he realized that they knew nothing, but also that they did not want to do anything. It was politically unhealthy. He went home happy to have touched a nerve. He was an activist, a guy who took his students to visit the missile sites in Tulsa. But what about his suicide? The first McDonald suicide was in his car in the parking lot of the university. With a gun shoved in his mouth and the bullet penetrated up to the brain, without damaging the lobes, but severing the right optic nerve and blocking its peripheral visual function. He could only see blurred points ahead with his left eye. He was blind to 90 percent, and in critical condition. He was rushed to the hospital and they tried to remove the bullet from the skull and stabilize him. He was in the intensive care ward in a hospital bed being watched 24 hours a day. He had no clothes or shoes. In the middle of the night at two in the morning, McDonald disappears from his bed. He evaporated. He was found in the desert, alone, this time with his skull pierced by a gunshot to his temple. Now, how can we explain that a nearly blind man, with no clothes, gets out of his bed, reaches the only entrance, constantly guarded, and leaves the hospital without arousing any suspicion. How can you do that? According to the version given by the press, McDonald would have left the hospital, reached his home, took a second gun he had hidden in a box in a closet in the bedroom while his wife was asleep, without waking her up. Then, we don't know if he was escorted by somebody, and how he would go to the desert, where he killed himself. Nobody saw anything. They found him lying there. No car, no other vehicle near the body. None. Why are we still talking about a suicide? There was no investigation, no suspect, the insurance refund was immediately provided. Here, we have another problem.

Col. Stevens and William Herrmann's book "Contact From Reticulum" privately published in 1981 by Wendelle Stevens.

The insurance was to investigate the circumstances of death and instead very quickly they arranged everything. No autopsy. He was buried the next day and the most horrible thing is that so far nobody has investigated anything, no action by the authorities, no police, no public official. The case was closed as a suicide. The day following his death, while the morticians were preparing the body for burial, some government agents went to his residence and explained to his wife that James was working on classified projects, and wanted to take his documents. They confiscated almost everything they found inside a cabinet and then returned about a third of the papers, after taking what they wanted.

Now, I have an advice for the UFO researchers. It is important that you are well known to the public, if you want to get results. It is clear that when a famous researcher discloses something very sensitive, the power tends to confirm his statements. They cannot do otherwise and they try to avoid it. Their strategy is to discredit, as they did with me, with allegations concerning sexual crimes, hideous crimes, to which people react with repulsion. They can create anything to make you look bad. They are great experts in this. They fabricate the evidence.

Gli ultimi giorni di Wendelle Stevens, il colonnello ufologo che sapeva troppo

15 gennaio 2016 di Maurizio Baiata <https://maurziobaiata.com/2016/01/15/3035/#more-3035ws>

Per abbracciarlo, seduto sul suo scooter elettrico con cui gironzola agevolmente, bombola a ossigeno con cannule nelle narici, devo piegarci su di lui. Wendelle stende le braccia mentre il viso scarno e profondamente segnato si illumina in un debole sorriso. Ci sistemiamo al grande tavolo rettangolare della redazione della rivista "Open Minds", che mi vede ancora direttore. Questo sarà il nostro ultimo incontro. È il 25 Agosto 2010.

Wendelle passa a trovarci regolarmente ogni mercoledì, se le sue condizioni glielo consentono. Negli ultimi tempi, l'età e i malanni hanno avuto il sopravvento. Dal mio arrivo a Tempe nell'Aprile 2009, l'ho visto deperire rapidamente, ma nella conversazione resta acuto, coinvolgente, impossibile quasi interromperlo nelle sue digressioni, molte delle quali ho registrato e ho intenzione di pubblicare al più presto.

Torniamo indietro, a poco più di un anno prima, nella sua casa di Tucson a poco meno di 200 chilometri da Phoenix. Partenza di buon mattino con il mio capo John Rao e Jason McClellan del video team di Open Minds TV. Lasciamo Tempe, superiamo l'elegante Scottsdale e prendiamo la I-10 direzione Tucson, una bella città mecca del "buen retiro" di tanti cittadini dell'Arizona, dove l'ottantaseienne ex tenente colonnello dell'USAF risiede con la moglie trentenne Suzy. Passiamo un deposito di aerei militari dismessi. Si estende per almeno due-tre chilometri, file interminabili di caccia e bombardieri, a centinaia fermi, muti, le ali abbassate. Hanno finito di portare morte. Potrebbero venderli per pochi dollari a noi Italiani...

Dobbiamo incontrare Stevens per fare il punto su una questione importante: la cessione del suo prezioso archivio a Open Minds, l'impresa editoriale e multimediale specializzata in ufologia, il cui boss ha il pallino del possedere tutto il possibile e i mezzi finanziari per accaparrarselo.

Le trattative sono appena iniziate e Rao deve verificare della portata e della qualità della collezione di libri, riviste, fotografie, video, documentazione cartacea e cimeli, perfettamente ordinata in due stanze della casa, il classico ranch a un piano di queste regioni del South West americano. Wendelle lì amava trascorrere le giornate in compagnia di un grosso gatto grigio scuro che fa per un attimo capolino e di una cagnetta Chihuahua piuttosto scorbutica.

Al nostro arrivo, Suzy ci fa trovare uno spuntino: frutta fresca, tartine, formaggi e caffè. Sono decenni che sento parlare di questo mitico archivio e finalmente si svela ai miei occhi. Scatto foto di qua e di là non sapendo cosa prediligere, mentre Wendelle illustra a John Rao come tutto è organizzato e minuziosamente catalogato.

La raccolta fotografica è divisa in due sezioni, la più voluminosa composta da una quarantina di grandi album di fotografie in bianco e nero e a colori, l'altra da una decina di contenitori diapositive ordinate cronologicamente dal 1947 al 1999. Ogni caso è corredato da un rapporto tecnico, testimoniale e analitico.

documentari in video provengono da tutto il mondo, Italia inclusa.

Una grossa parte dell'archivio però si trova altrove, in un deposito non lontano. Nella scalcinata auto del colonnello, impavido al volante con il berretto USAF, siedo al suo fianco, Rao e Jason sono sulla Lexus del boss. Arriviamo al mega magazzino.

Stevens apre il box che contiene il secondo blocco del suo archivio. (Photo: Maurizio Baiata)

Corridoi e tante porte chiuse. Ne apre una, ecco il resto dell'archivio. Vi sono raccolte centinaia di libri e decine di scatoloni di plastica con dentro lettere a non finire, vecchie di decenni. Ognuna in un fascicolo che ricostruisce un avvistamento o un incontro ravvicinato, con foto, grafici e documenti.

Wendelle ricorda tutto. Lo assiste una memoria prodigiosa. È in grado di ricostruire anche i minimi dettagli di ciascun episodio, i nomi, le date e i luoghi, le circostanze e le implicazioni. Wendelle ha sempre collaborato con chiunque volesse riportare e, volendolo, anche divulgare la propria esperienza, ha avuto contatti con ufologi e appassionati di tutto il mondo, che si sono rivolti a lui con fiducia e rispetto, fornendogli materiale e resoconti a centinaia.

I casi da lui investigati personalmente risalgono agli anni '60, all'epoca del Blue Book, il progetto di ricerca dell'USAF in cui Stevens si trovò a lavorare come analista, estendendosi ad anni recenti. Si deve a lui la prima seria indagine sul caso Billy Meier, delle cui foto ha decine di copie di alta qualità, ma non gli originali, che gli sono stati trafugati. E ora tutto questo è destinato a divenire reperti da museo, ospitati in una zona riservata della sede di Open Minds, a Tempe. A beneficio del visitatore all'ingresso è stata posta una targa che recita "per gentile donazione del Colonnello Wendelle Stevens".

Wendelle Stevens iniziò i suoi studi sugli UFO dopo il congedo dall'Air Force nell'Ottobre 1963 con il grado di tenente colonnello. Nativo del Minnesota, classe 1923, diplomato alla Lockheed nel 1941, Stevens si arruolò nell'esercito degli Stati Uniti nel 1942 come specialista in manutenzione aerea, prestando servizio nel Pacifico.

Alla fine della guerra fu assegnato alla Flight Test Division del Material Air Command, alla base aerea di Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio (che diverrà Wright-Patterson). Negli anni successivi fu operativo nella divisione tecnica dell'Air Intelligence Center (ATIC), in parallelo alla cui attività avrebbero visto la luce i progetti militari ufficiali sugli UFO, "Sign", "Grudge" e "Bluebook", marcati USAF.

Nella calda estate ufologica del 1947 Wendelle venne dislocato in Alaska, dove diresse una squadra speciale di ricognizione aerea, di foto rilevamento e mappatura di una vasta area artica. Il progetto era altamente classificato e i velivoli disponevano di apparecchiature cinematografiche all'avanguardia. In diverse occasioni i piloti avevano segnalato avvistamenti di oggetti volanti non identificati. Le riprese con le "gun camera" (cine mitragliatrici di bordo) non lasciavano dubbi sulle straordinarie capacità di manovra dei misteriosi visitatori, impossibili da intercettare.

Di tutti i filmati UFO che gli passarono per le mani e che erano stati spediti a Washington, l'ufficio di Stevens non avrebbe avuto più notizia. Decise che sarebbe stato meglio andare avanti da solo. D'altronde, si era fatto le ossa all'interno del Blue Book, struttura che, a suo dire, avrebbe funzionato da specchio per le allodole, un innocuo, anche se indaffarato ufficio di pubbliche relazioni messo su per tranquillizzare con spiegazioni convenzionali un'opinione pubblica destinata a restare all'oscuro dei casi realmente importanti. I rapporti interessanti passavano ad altre strutture di intelligence che li avrebbero trattati nella segretezza totale: il cover-up era già in atto.

Caparbiamente e sempre da lupo solitario, Stevens proseguiva le sue indagini, iniziando ad esporsi pubblicamente negli anni Ottanta, primo fra gli "insider militari" che, smessa la divisa, denunciavano lo stato di segretezza sulla questione UFO. Ne sapeva molto per esserci stato, in quel sistema di intelligence che gestisce e occulta tutto. E averne parlato e denunciato apertamente non gli avrebbe reso la vita facile. Accusato e processato per lo stupro di una minorenni, Stevens fu condannato e scontò due anni di prigione, grazie al patteggiamento. In privato, Stevens ha sempre negato di essersi macchiato di tale crimine. Disse che le accuse erano state montate ad arte, per metterlo a tacere. In sede di giudizio era stato costretto ad ammettere la colpa per evitare molti anni di carcere e la sicura perdita sia dei gradi sia della pensione.

Wendelle ha scelto di vivere una vita tranquilla. Di riprendere e continuare il proprio lavoro di ricercatore indipendente e mai entrato in un'organizzazione come il MUFON e il CUFOS, con i loro regnanti, gli alfieri e i portaborse. Soprattutto per questa ragione, ritengo, non era molto ben visto nell'ambiente. Posso testimoniare come ogni sua partecipazione a un congresso, ogni sua apparizione in pubblico, negli ultimi anni siano state accolte dalla gente con il dovuto rispetto e con l'ammirazione che il vecchio leone meritava. In Italia, lo ricordiamo a Montesilvano nel 1997, nel memorabile congresso "Il Contatto", accanto a Philip Corso (li vediamo a colazione, nella foto sotto), Robert Dean e Desmond Leslie.

Era il decano, era un punto di riferimento. Un ex militare di alto grado, non così affabile come Bob Dean, al quale è stato legato da un'amicizia profonda, ma altrettanto convincente nelle sue argomentazioni, anche quelle tanto ardite da rasentare l'assurdo.

La morte lo ha colto a Tucson il 7 Settembre 2010. Aveva 87 anni e il suo sistema respiratorio ormai non ce la faceva più. Gli sciacalli, anche in Italia, non hanno tardato a ricordare che era stato condannato per pedofilia e che, di conseguenza, il suo nome doveva essere cancellato dagli annali dell'ufologia mondiale. Ma questo non accadrà. Si sa infatti che il sistema di segretezza prevede pesantissime ripercussioni per chi ne infranga i vincoli. Nel debunking, il gioco veramente sporco si fa ferendo a morte la tua reputazione. Nessuno passa indenne un'accusa di pedofilia, soprattutto negli Stati Uniti. Trovai il coraggio di chiedergli qualcosa a proposito di quella parentesi tanto orribile della sua esistenza solo una volta. Mi rispose che aveva superato tutto.

Per l'ultimo saluto a Wendelle Stevens, venerdì 17 Settembre 2010 al The Village Inn di Tucson, era schierato un picchetto d'onore dell'Aeronautica degli Stati Uniti. Qualcuno aveva deciso che era giusto rendergli omaggio. Avrei voluto esserci e sarei stato fra i pochi. Solo una trentina di persone, esclusi i militari e incluso un gruppo di Hell's Angels con la bandiera a stelle e strisce. Che strana, la vita di un uomo il cui il rito funebre è accompagnato dalle note delle cornamuse e dal rombo delle Harley's. O forse no. Tutto giusto, anche il finale, per Wendelle. In nome delle sue origini scozzesi.

"They Wanted to Know Too Much" - Col. Wendelle Stevens (Ret. USAF) talks about the strange death of prominent UFO researchers

Mockingjays

Kai Amos, Germany

In the 19th century, when citizens fought for more democracy against the incipient parliamentary and party dictatorship, they had the courage to sing mocking songs at the politicians. Nowadays the citizens, oppositionists, cabaret artists, artists, etc. are the politicians' analleckers. analleckers of the politicians and too cowardly to sing mocking songs. I have it.

Mocking Song 1 The Federal Government

Lauterbach runs back and forth in the Bundestag, wishing he was the greatest there, and jumps on his crap and sings,
"Kokidudeldu, di-dudeldi-duduldi-du".

Lemke is pawing around in the Bundestag, and thinks Lauterbach is brown and dumb, and Lemke can be heard cackling,
"gooockgooock."
and Lauterbach is singing on his crap,
"Kokidudeldu, di-dudeldi-duduldi-du".

The mirrors, they waddle past the crap and say to themselves, the guy doesn't even lay an egg, and you can hear the mirrors croak,
"quakquak."
and Lauterbach is singing on his crap,
"Kokidudeldu, di-dudeldi-duduldi-du".

The Lindner, who is whistling from the last hole, and shouts: "You'll drive away the mice" and you can hear the Lindner meowing,
"miaumiau."
and Lauterbach is singing on his crap,
"Kokidudeldu, di-dudeldi-duduldi-du".

Heil, he gnaws off a bone, he has snatched it away from the poor, and Heil can be heard barking,
"woof."
and Lauterbach is singing on his crap,

"Kokidudeldu, di-dudeldi-duduldi-du".

My, how the Baerbock grunts, moans and squeals again, as if someone had poked her in the butt again,
and you can hear the Baerbock grunt,
"grunt grunt."
and Lauterbach is singing on his crap,
"Kokidudeldu, di-dudeldi-duduldi-du".

Habeck, he swims around in circles in the aquarium all day long, and you can hear him,
"blubblubb",
and Lauterbach is singing on his crap,
"Kokidudeldu, di-dudeldi-duduldi-du".

Scholz, he rests in front of lying TV, he makes so much trouble day in, day out, and he falls asleep and goes,
"snore snore."
and Lauterbach is singing on his crap,
"Kokidudeldu, di-dudeldi-duduldi-du".

And one night, a smart advisor came along and taught every member of the government a foreign language, and then the federal government sounded like this:
And the goldfish you hear croaking, and the pig you hear cackling, and the dog
you hear meowing,
and the cat you hear barking, and the duck you hear grunting, and the chicken you hear bubbling, and the farmer you hear quacking;
just Lauterbach singing on his crap,
"Kokidudeldu, di-dudeldi-duduldi-du".

Similarities with other songs are purely coincidental (err: accidental) and not intended. But I think the melody of the nursery rhyme 'The Hen House' fits well with this song.

Mocking Song 2

The old organ grinder Lauterbach and the vaccination orphan

The old organ grinder and the vaccine orphan wander the streets, wander the alleys And all see how the two are so lonely Forgotten and abandoned by the happiness of the world But whatever happens, they firmly believe in it
That one day their luck may change For the orphan and the organ grinder

In a small town, in the middle of winter.
Did he find the poor child, the parents were dead inoculated She had no one left, the little orphan In her bitter, so infinitely great need The old man, who himself had experienced much suffering He drew her gently and graciously to his heart
A small child, a man of seventy-seven They now shared their pain together

The old organ grinder and the vaccinated orphan Wandering through the streets, wandering through the

And all see how the two are so lonely From the happiness of the world forgotten and abandoned But what happens, they firmly believe in it
 That one day their fortunes may still change For the orphan and the organ grinder.

Reader Question:

I'm very interested in what it is about people changing. To what extent will people change, in anatomy? What haven't the human scientists and anthropologists noticed yet? Could you please be more specific and explain in more detail what is going to change blatantly in humans, to their own detriment?

Kind regards
 Bilal Keskinoglu

Response:

Although this is not a doctrinal question, I will answer it for once:

The change of the people in a blatant way that started in the 1960ies of the last century and/or millenium refers to the fact that he has lost his self-thinking even more and is continuously losing it more and more. Thereby, he lets himself be influenced more and more in his religious and political faith in such a way that he often only believes and does not think, decide and act himself anymore, but only according to what he believes and releases to the outside, in the misbelief that what he believes is his very own opinion. Thereby he deceives himself, lets himself be dominated by faith - religiously, politically and in every other way -, rapidly loses his self-determination in such a way that his personal understanding and also his personal behaviour concerning the value of life of man, the planet, nature as well as fauna and flora in every respect is formed in such a way, what he is suggestively led to believe.

Through the faith of every kind suggested to him - that is to say, not only religious - man on earth has from the

In the 1960?s the believer has lost his self-respect and already the real self-thinking, deciding and acting in such a way that he leaves this more and more to those who have a suggestive effect on him. This is done by those who are still capable of thinking, deciding and acting and who consciously use this to suggestively influence the people who are addicted to faith in such a way that they faithfully follow what is shown or lied to them in their initiative-less non-thinking, non-self-deciding and non-self-acting.

Since the 1960ies the people of the world are changing in such a way that they are no longer themselves and lose more and more their own initiative as well as their compassion for their neighbours. Also the behaviour towards oneself is changed, consequently people try to put themselves in the foreground, but on the other hand they get enthusiastic about music, football and film celebrities and other famous 'greats' as well as famous sports because of their lack of self-initiative, but they don't take the initiative to act in the same way themselves.

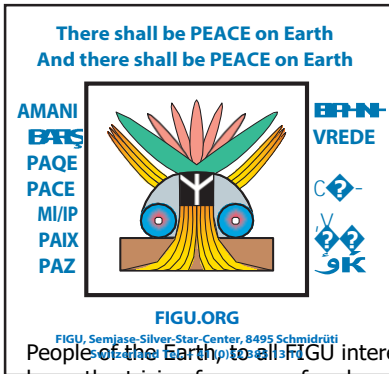

People are changing so rapidly and so blatantly with regard to their own development in terms of their consciousness and effective knowledge, and with regard to a good general education, comprehensive interests and manual dexterity, which already shows an atrophy of these necessities of life. An effective fact that proves that the man of the earth becomes more and more effeminate and incapable to necessarily be himself and to be that man in life who is able to sustain himself and is not only able to live because he can exist through the co-living of others. He has practically become incapable to live when he is alone on his own because he inevitably needs the help of others. He is also psychologically very unstable and vulnerable, quickly helpless, and often he needs help to exist at all. He has also become unusually violent, tries to get weapons more and more, and he becomes faster and more ruthless, exercises less and less control over himself and carelessly turns to hatred, jealousy as well as revenge, which have religious, private as well as political and other backgrounds, or which arise from unresolved psychological problems. And all this is spreading more and more, but only a few manage to find their way out of this misery by learning to think right and by not shying away from the way to really learn what gives them inner strength and will to live. That they learn to be themselves and to understand themselves, and that effectively only they can form themselves to a true human being and become able to live, this no one teaches them, because as a rule they do not come to this knowledge themselves, and further they reject this as a crazy request and neither want to believe it nor make an effort to learn to think for themselves and to understand themselves.

to strive for the self-forming to the right, good and valuable own life in own initiative. Truly there is an insufficient development of the brain - an infantile dementia.

That therefore once in a short way set out, how the earth man since the 1960s has changed very blatantly and has become dependent and practically ill in itself, which has not been ascertained so far by humanists nor anthropologists etc.. Nor that since about the 1980s there has been another blatant fact of change in man, which has come about as a result of rapid and much too rapid development.

Spreading the right peace symbol

Das falsche Friedenssymbol – die heute weltweit verbreitete sogenannte <Todesrune>, die aus den keltischen Futhark-Runen resp. der umgedrehten Algiz-Rune fabriziert wurde – ist der eigentliche Inbegriff negativer Einflüsse und schafft zerstörerische Schwingungen hinsichtlich Unfrieden, Fehden und Hass, Rache, Laster, Süchte und Hörigkeit, denn die For many people <death rune> means reminiscences of the NAZI time, of death and ruin, as well as ambitions concerning wars, terror, destruction of many human achievements and all necessary bases of life of any kind, and thus worldwide discord, because for people every sign of death symbolizes fear and disaster.

It is really urgently necessary that the <death rune> as a false peace symbol, which creates discord and unrest, disappears completely from the earth world and that the ancient as well as correct peace symbol resp. The central elements of this symbol reflect peace, freedom, harmony, strengthening of the life force, protection, growth and wisdom, and have an uplifting and very calming effect and help peaceful-positive vibrations to break through, which can effectively convey peace, freedom and harmony! We therefore appeal to all sensible

People of the Earth to all FIGU interest groups, FIGU study groups and FIGU s national groups and thus to all reasonable and honestly striving for peace, freedom, harmony, justice, knowledge and evolution, to do and give their best to spread the correct peace symbol worldwide and to create enlightenment about the dangerous and destructive use of the <Death Rune>, which, in memory of the NAZI crimes, collectively promotes in the minds and aspirations of the people character dissipation, degeneracy and mischief, as this is unfortunately also extremely carried into the present time after the end of the last World War 1939- 1945.

Spreading of the Correct Peace Symbol

The wrong peace symbol - the globally widespread "death rune" which has been fabricated from the Celtic Futhark runes or inverted Algiz rune - is the actual embodiment/quintessence of negative influences and evokes destructive swinging-waves regarding unpeace and hatred, revenge, vice, addictions and bondage, because for many human beings the "death rune" means reminiscence (memories) of the Nazi era, of death and ruin as well as ambitions concerning war, terror, destruction of human achievements, livelihoods as well as global evil unpeace.

Therefore it is of the utmost necessity that the wrong peace symbol, the "death rune", disappears from the world and that the ancient and correct peace symbol is spread and made known all-over the world, because its central elements reflect peace, freedom, harmony, strengthening of the life power, protection, growth and wisdom, have a constructive and strongly soothing effect, and help peaceful-positive swinging-waves to break through.

Therefore we appeal to all FIGU members, all FIGU interest groups, study and national groups as well to all reasonable human beings, who are honestly striving for peace, freedom, harmony, fairness, knowledge and evolution, to do, and give, their best to spread the correct peace symbol worldwide and to bring forth clarification about the dangerous and destructive use of the "death rune", which in memory of the Nazi crimes collectively furthers deterioration and neglect of character-"ausartung" and terribleness in the reflecting and striving of the human being, as this is still being extremely carried on after the end of the last world war 1939-1945 until the current time.

Also spreads the 'fight overpopulation' symbol

Stick the 'fight overpopulation' symbol and the peace symbol on it, and spread it that way. Stick it, where it is allowed, also everywhere else on walls, posters etc.!

Withering beauty Beauty is like a flower, which in its splendour beguiles the senses of men and makes them dream. But when it withers, it becomes a torment to many a man, poisoning his life and making him melancholy, because he thinks of himself as he grows older, withers himself, but is unable to come to terms with it and thus cannot go on living his life.

Man's ears...

The ears of man must be intimately connected with his mind and with his reason, so that he hears no word with the ears alone, but that he also takes it in with the mind and with reason, and can also consciously comprehend and learn it.

Spirituality Peace Symbol
Peace

True peace can only come about on earth among the world's population when every sensible and reasonable human being finally takes the first non-violent step towards it, in order then to take every further step in peace, deliberately and consciously, right up to the final consequence of achieving peace.
